Index

Market index: MSCI AC Pacific Index (Net)
 Index is for comparative purpose only. The same index is used in the positioning tables on this factsheet.
 The Index up to 30 September 1999 was the FT/S&P Actuaries Pacific including Japan Index and up to 30 June 2011 was the MSCI AC Pacific Free Index. On 1 July 2011, the Index was changed to the MSCI All Countries Pacific Index (Net). The reason for the change is that a net index calculates performance net of withholding taxes which is more comparable with the calculation of the performance of the fund (also net of withholding taxes).

Definition of Terms

Annualised Volatility is a measure of how variable returns for a fund or comparative market index have been around their historical average. Two funds may produce the same return over a period. The fund whose monthly returns have varied less will have a lower annualised volatility and will be considered to have achieved its returns with less risk.

Beta is a measure of a fund's sensitivity to market movement (as represented by a market index). The beta of the market is 1.00 by definition. A beta of 1.10 shows that the fund could be expected to perform 10% better than the index in up markets and 10% worse in down markets, assuming all other factors remain constant. Conversely, a beta of 0.85 indicates that the fund could be expected to perform 15% worse than the market return during up markets and 15% better during down markets.

Sharpe Ratio is a measure of a fund's risk adjusted performance taking into account the return on a risk-free investment. The ratio allows an investor to assess whether the fund is generating adequate returns for the level of risk it is taking. The higher the ratio, the better the risk-adjusted performance has been. If the ratio is negative, the fund has returned less than the risk-free rate.

Active Money is the sum of the fund's overweight positions (including effective cash) when compared to the market index.

A position combines all equity investments (including derivatives) linked to an issuing company. Derivatives are included on an exposure basis so they reflect the equivalent underlying shares needed to generate the same return. Geographic and sector breakdown tables are calculated using the positions methodology.
